

TEAM BUILDING TOOL

Understanding your psychological Type, the TYPE of others and T.E.A.M Building

As individuals, there are many traits that make us unique!

These traits or preferences affect how we interact with each other and indeed the world.

Tapping into these traits and preferences can help managers understand their team members better, thus building a solid framework for effective team management.

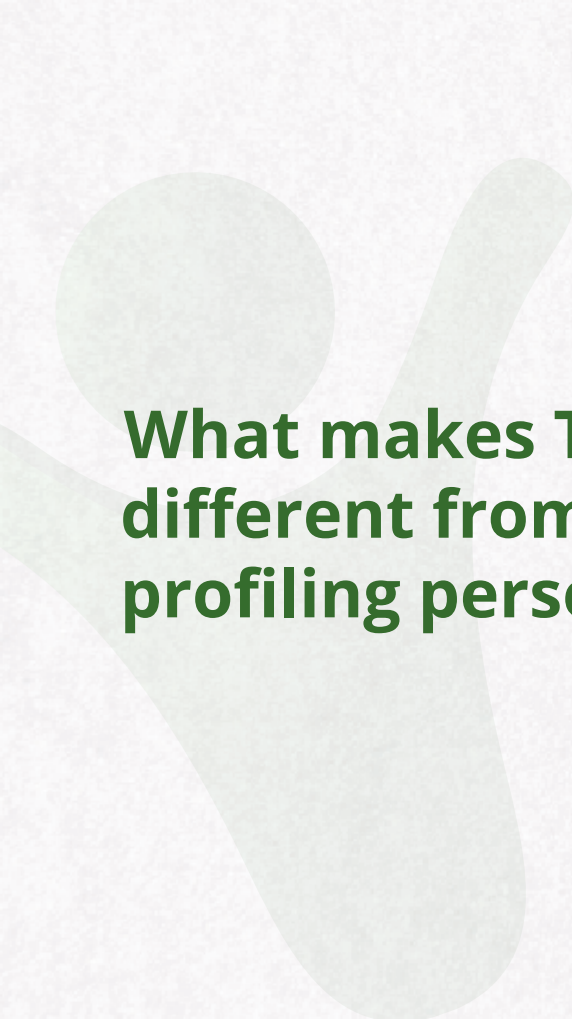

At HCPA we have developed an exclusive tool that allows individuals to understand their own personal psychological types and identify those preferences in others.

During the T.E.A.M building session learners will achieve insight into their own communication style and how they can more effectively interact with others.

Based on the concept of intent versus perception, this course supports learners in discovering how they can self-motivate to achieve greater results, while also engaging more productively with their teams.

This understanding is crucial for organisations to develop a positive culture where communication is open, and conflict is reduced.

What makes T.E.A.M different from other profiling personality tools?

T.E.A.M is a revolutionary profiling tool that goes beyond traditional personality assessments. Unlike other tools, T.E.A.M offers an online holistic assessment that creates a unique shape for each learner, guiding them through the discovery of the 4 main psychological types.

Through this tool learners can understand the key drivers of their type by identifying their strengths and opportunities, enabling them to work more effectively. In addition, T.E.A.M is an effective management tool as by learning each person's type you can discover what motivates individuals and how best to resolve conflict.

With T.E.A.M learners will gain a deeper understanding of how the 4 main psychological types are engrained in our culture, and how they can exist more harmoniously both in and outside of work.

Say goodbye to traditional profiling tools and hello to T.E.A.M – the ultimate tool for building stronger, more effective teams.
